Marcia Gomes was born into a family of several generations of gifted musicians and her musical influences are rich and diverse. Marcia's songs, which explore themes of faith, redemption, and social justice, have been described as deeply moving and powerful.

Arjuna Greist is a singer, songwriter, and folkpoet for the revolution. They believe that music and art can energize, educate, and unite those working in the many interconnected social justice movements.

Adam Matlock is an accordionist, composer, and vocalist who writes as An Historic, building narratives accompanied by musical inspirations from many traditions. He teaches music in the New Haven area and performs his music in a number of groups.

Gloria De,Layne Matlock is an educator, dancer, poet, chorus director, and playwright. She has presented her workshops using music to heal racism throughout the U.S. and beyond.

Channeling essences of driving sassy blues, sultry jazz, and mellow folk, Licia Sky sings with an intimacy, warmth, and room filling resonance that invites listeners in. Her sharp insightful lyrics reach for the truth with an inspired mix of vulnerability, ironic humor, sensuality, and wonder.
